Re: U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service, CIS No. 2393-06; Docket No. USCIS-2006-0044, RIN 1615-AB53

To whom it may concern:

I am opposed to the increase in USCIS fees in regards to international adoption. Already, the USCIS charges hundreds of dollars to process these applications, yet takes 90-120 days on average to complete the process! In the mean time, orphans wait! What are the increased fees going for? Will they process the I-600A applications any sooner? I doubt it.

Read on . . .

I am opposed to the increase in USCIS fees that this proposed rule would permit the agency to charge as they apply to international adoption. There are already more than 150,000,000 orphans in the world, and the number is dramatically increasing each year. There are also tens of thousands of American families who want to personally help deal with this growing crisis by providing stable and loving homes to some of these orphans.

Yet the process of international adoption for these families is already expensive enough and more difficult than it already needs to be, thanks to our own government. I don't think that the federal government should be making the process even more difficult by increasing these costs as proposed in this rule.

I support an exemption from the increased fees for everything USCIS does related to international adoption.
