

Dear Congressman,

As you have already know, The Office of U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS) has increased the application fees to an average of 66%. While these increases may not seem to hurt middle and upper working classes, it does regrettably affect the biggest population of all: low income families.

Immigrants alone already have trouble seeking for jobs and employment, these increases will be a barrier for them to become legal residents or citizens. Not to mention, low income families will be financially devastated. I urge you, as a current citizen to take action and void the proposal.
