Re: DHS Docket No. USCIS 2006-0044

Becoming an American citizen is a privilege not an automatic right for everyone who wanders into this country. People who cannot afford a nominal fee for citizenship are probably going to become a drain on the social services we offer. Our government should be focusing on how we will pay for the millions of "baby boomers" who will require these programs. Possibly if these future Americans sent less money back to their home countries, they would be able to afford citizenship here.

Sincerely,
